

Katelyn Emerson

Named “one of the best young organists in the world” by the University of St Andrews (Scotland), Katelyn Emerson concertizes, teaches, and lectures throughout the United States, Europe, and Asia on topics ranging from organ interpretation and healthy practice techniques to sacred music, having received top prizes from international organ competitions in the United States, France, Japan, and Russia. Her double degrees in organ performance and French are from Oberlin College (USA) and, as recipient of a J. William Fulbright Study/Research Grant and a German Academy Exchange Scholarship, Katelyn studied en perfectionnement at the Conservatoire de Toulouse (France) and was awarded the Master Orgel from the Stuttgart Musikhochschule (Germany). Her teachers have included Ludger Lohmann, Michel Bouvard, Jan Willem Jansen, Hans-Ola Ericsson, James David Christie, Olivier Latry, Marie-Louis Langlais, and Ray Cornils, and her two CD recordings are available on the Pro Organo label. For more information, please visit: www.katelynemerson.com.